

An introduction to Patient and Public Involvement (PPI) for Researchers

Tuesday 25 April 2017 10am to 12pm

(Afternoon session from 12-3pm for those developing research ideas, includes lunch)

Deakin Centre, Level 3, Room 8 Addenbrooke's Campus

This free workshop from the NIHR Cambridge BRC, NIHR CLARHC EoE, & the NIHR RDS East of England is open to all research staff conducting research studies and clinical trials with patients in the NHS. The event will provide:

- an introduction to PPI in research - what and why
- guidance on how you can conduct PPI - using researcher and PPI representative case studies
- advice and guidance on how to incorporate PPI into grant funding
- plenty of opportunities for discussion and questions

The morning only session will particularly suit people who are new to PPI in research and need to understand what it is, and for those who are setting up their first PPI project.

There are up to 10 places available in the afternoon for delegates ready to develop a research question, protocol or idea and want practical advice on incorporating PPI into their application.
